

London, 5.5.46

Dearest Mary,

I am leaving tomorrow early in the morning for Paris. On Tuesday probably I will have a plane for New York. I asked yesterday my friends in Paris to tell Amos that I am coming, and if he can get leave - to come and meet me there.

Mrs. Lily Mendelson, a friend of mine who works in our office in London will take care of all your needs when you come to London. She will get you a room, arrange for your passage and also see a Rabbi to turn you into a Jewess... I was really happy to hear that you have the blessing of your parents. If I return from the States to England while you are still here, I may go to visit - if you wish me to do so.

I heard today a distressing rumor which you may receive with satisfaction: the Jewish Brigade is to be disbanded very soon. I don't know whether it is true. If it is - then Amos would be discharged very soon, and you may go together to Palestine. In spite of that, I want the Brigade to stay and Amos to remain where he is. But I am afraid we may not be able to reverse the decision - if really it is a decision.

Mrs. Mendelson will send you tomorrow the few things I got for you from Paris.

I will give you my address in New York in case you care to send me a few words:

342 Madison Avenue,
New York City, N.Y.

Yours,

David
